Keenly focused on team building and leadership development, Renee Sievert is a recognized and certified senior executive coach with pLink Leadership®. She is also an Equus Coach® and Master Equus Facilitator, registered nurse, published author, and licensed therapist. With deep observation and true empathy, she creates a generous and nonjudgmental environment in service of her clients' growth, encouraging them to reconnect with their intuition and develop real self-confidence.

Whether in the round pen or the boardroom, Renee brings a quiet wisdom and a calm energy to her growth-based approach. Her forte is in working with new and emerging leaders who want to increase their self-awareness and step into their strengths with integrity. She has found that working alongside horses is an incredibly beneficial method for reconnecting with authentic leadership and cultivating effective non-verbal communication.

Originally from New Mexico, Renee loves country music and extra hot chili, and she can dance a smooth two-step, jitterbug, and electric slide. She lives in San Diego, CA, with her husband and two cats. She can often be found at a nearby ranch learning from her three horses, Angel, Cooper, and Rascal.
