

How to Say No...

I don't think it's a good fit based on our strategic approach this year

Right now, I'm totally focused on getting xyz done, thank you for the opportunity

Cool!

Gosh, I'd love to, but I promised myself I wouldn't take on one more thing even if it was really cool

I'm flattered you thought of me, I can't take advantage of that opportunity now and still deliver on what I've promised to do already

I realize I've had to say no to a couple of your invites, but please keep inviting me. One of these days the stars will align and I'll be able to join you.

In an effort to practice what I preach and find some balance, I'm choosing to say no

Have you ever had to say no to something you really wanted to do but didn't have time to do? That's what I'm going to have to do in this situation
