

Leading In Unusual Times

Navigating uncertainty and disruption by leading yourself and others when it's business as unusual.

As the world is coming to grips with the current reality, caused by the pandemic, it's more important than ever that business leaders stay calm and lead their teams with courage and connection. While we can't control the scope and scale of the adversity we may face, how we lead during this time is well within our control. Effective leadership will require self-awareness, clear intention, well-thought-out communication, and an ability to attend to fears and feelings.

At pLink Leadership, we've been working with our clients, individually and collectively, on leading effectively through complexity. We believe that those clients who continue to focus on increasing their leadership capacity during this time will be most successful. At pLink leadership, we live and breathe leading and working virtually in two essential ways. First, we are a 100% virtual organization and have been since our inception. Second, we work with a global client base by designing programs that can be delivered in person or virtually, with great success.

In light of the current disruption, we are offering the following series of conversations in addition to our regular program offerings. These conversations are designed to give leaders practical information and best practices in a psychologically safe, virtual environment to increase their ability to deal with the current reality.

1. Leading Remote Teams: Creating Accountability and Motivation
2. Managing Anxiety, Grief, and Fear in Yourself and Others
3. Being Productive While Working at Home: Best Practices
4. Self-Care: Vitality, Zest, and Resilience During Disruption
5. Emotional Agility: How to Handle It When You Are Hooked

The program can be delivered as a five-part series or as individual workshops.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Build confidence, awareness, and connection while delivering practical, real-world ways of applying the learning.
- Make a tangible difference in the way people lead during this new reality.

“

In strange and uncertain times such as those we are living in, sometimes a reasonable person might despair. But hope is unreasonable and love is greater even than this. May we trust in the inexpressible benevolence of the creative impulse

- Robert Fripp

And our ability to lead ourselves and others through this adversity.

- pLink Leadership

Format

Each workshop is designed around research and best practices for remaining resilient, managing anxiety, and leading in uncertain times. Workshops run 75 to 120 minutes, and are led by our pLink Leadership executive coaches.

Contact Us

If you would like to explore bringing this series, or any of our other virtual programs, to your organization as dedicated offerings please contact Stacie Kenton to discuss pricing and availability.

STACIE@PLINKLEADERSHIP.COM
800.447.1159 X801
WWW.PLINKLEADERSHIP.COM

